This Week in Summer Session

Our sincere apologies if you had a problem accessing last Monday's class on Overcoming Adversity. We experienced a technical glitch on our end. The problem has been fixed. The class was recorded and will be available to view on the Remote Learning Center. We will notify you when it is ready for viewing.

SE 3: PERCEPTION VS. MEMORY
Wednesday, July 22
1-3 PM

(See important instructions listed below on how to watch this class online.)

How does the brain learn and remember? Our perception of reality influences memory by various factors. Take a brain tour and join us for this riveting experience, illuminating talk and Q&A session.

Presenter: Dr. Michael Yassa, Professor and UCI Chancellor's Fellow, Department of Neurobiology and Behavior; Director, Center for Neurobiology of Learning and Memory; Director, UCI Brain Initiative.

Turn YOUR ideas into OLLI courses.

An Invitation:

Stimulate your brain and share your ideas with our Social Science Committee. Are you interested in or curious about history, politics, law, the economy, international affairs, current affairs and all things pertinent to our society? We'll provide a blueprint for you to learn how to develop courses and work with UCI faculty. You will help create a vital series of courses for our next semester.

We invite you to join the Social Science Committee and share your ideas. Our meetings are conducted through Zoom so no need to leave your home to participate. Respond to this email if you are interested or just curious and one of us will get in touch with you.

Thank you,

Mike Reddy michaeljreddy@gmail.com, Social Science
Chairperson

Jonathan Weil jonathanweil38@gmail.com, Committee member

Jessie Tromberg jessietromberg@icloud.com, Committee member
