INFINITE FRUSTRATION: The Human Side of Science

Wednesday, November 18

10:00 AM – 12:00 Noon

Click HERE to attend this class.

As a child, did you ever lie on your back and look at the night sky trying to imagine stars beyond the ones you could see, and more stars beyond them, and on and on forever? We have no personal experiences that can serve as an analogue of forever, whether of time or space. The infinitely large and small remain mysteries to human comprehension. We examine the need to cope with the infinite, and the 3,000-year history of Western philosophers, mathematicians and scientists to harness the infinite to meet humanity's intellectual capabilities.

Presenter/Developer: Howard Mirowitz, MBA, Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, manages a private venture fund, teaches at UCI's Merage School of Business.

We all want to communicate clearly and effectively, but we can't rely on Microsoft Word to be our copy editor. This course addresses the common grammatical and usage errors not covered in 2018's Part 1 or 2019's Part 2 - errors that often lead to comical, embarrassing and sometimes disastrous results. The sessions will include capitalization, the subjunctive mood, comparatives and superlatives, linking verbs vs. action verbs, and more. Audio-visual aids, wordplay and humor ensure that snoozing is not an option. The course does not require prior Part 1 or Part 2 attendance.

Presenter/Developer: Steve Weinstein, B.A. in English, University of Pittsburgh; and author of the book, Spell Check Won't Save You!
